Growth and Planning for the Future

President Alan LaFave, D.M.A.

In all the years I've been involved with higher education, the spring semester seems to fly by in such a hurry.

This has been especially true this semester in managing to pack meaningful and important campus activities into a shortened calendar, all while enduring the challenges of mother nature. I'd like to address a couple of high points.

Alumni and Arizona – February began with an opportunity to visit with alumni and friends of VCSU in Arizona. We were happy to be able to re-engage with this tradition since we were unable to do so last year due to Covid travel and gathering restrictions. We met with more than 50 folks in the Peoria and Mesa areas. It was a wonderful time to reconnect, to hear stories and understand what an important role VCSU played, and continues to play, in many of their lives.

Arts – It was an action-packed first week of activity in the new Center for the Arts with the first-ever art show opening on Feb. 16. The gallery featured the work of VCSU faculty and staff. The first concert performance on Feb. 18 in the new concert hall featured the talents of our instrumental students and ensembles.

It was a proud and inspiring week of activity for these folks, and a wonderful exhibition of talent. We thank the faculty, staff and students for the preparation and success of both events. If you haven't had a chance to see the new facilities, gallery space and concert hall, we invite you to put it on your "to do" list for the near future. I think you'll be impressed!

In addition to these exciting activities, we also saw another semester of strong enrollment. We welcomed the largest number of students for spring semester ever this year.

Maintaining a stable enrollment in these challenging times is a tribute to our students, faculty, staff and community. At VCSU we have seen increasing enrollments, counter to the national trend. In a Jan. 13 article, The Chronicle of Higher Education reported that undergraduate enrollments declined in every sector. Public 4-year institutions reported a 3.8% decrease in fall enrollment from the previous year. While we maintain our excellent undergraduate enrollment numbers, our graduate enrollment increased by nearly 20% this past fall.

Our commitment to provide top-notch facilities is part of planning for the future at VCSU. Our capital campaign is off to a wonderful start with more than $5.3 million in current pledges and gifts to help ensure the future success of the institution.

Our success is only achieved through the continued support of our alumni, community, state and nation.

It is my sincere hope that you are able to come to campus in the near future and experience the Center for the Arts. Hear a musical performance or pause for reflection in the art gallery. It is an awe-inspiring place and we are so proud to have it as part of our historic campus.

Go Vikings!

Keep Meeting the Challenge

Cory Anderson '89

Executive Director for University Advancement

Greetings from the Foundation Office at Valley City State University.

In 2013 North Dakota legislators created the North Dakota Challenge Fund

Matching Grant Program. Once funding applications are approved, the North Dakota University System Office disburses the funds to our campus by allocating $1 for every $2 raised through private donors.

So, how are we doing? The answer is very well, thanks to our alumni and friends – the donors for this program – who are completely and highly motivated by the state's commitment to support philanthropy. They have a great affinity for this institution, as well as great respect for the impact it made on their lives and the opportunities they have had because of their time as a Valley City State student or friend. Their attitude of gratitude is amazing.

The VCSU Foundation is using the Challenge Grant fund to enhance the scholarship program at Valley City State University. Since 2013, 97 unique donors have contributed more than $7 million through the Challenge Grant, which was matched with over $3.5 million from the state of North Dakota.

That movement alone provided more than 85 new scholarship endowment funds bringing us to over 260 endowed scholarships at VCSU. The decision of how these funds are allocated as scholarships is also determined by the donor.

Thanks to the Challenge Grant, our donors are willing to stretch themselves to have even more of an impact in partnership with the state of North Dakota. And when you have alumni, friends, corporations, and others who care so much about VCSU that they are willing to give of their time, their talent and their treasures, that really can lift our institution.

At that pivotal point in a young student's life, our alumni and friends are there to invest in the next generation. This is why Valley City State is a place that changes lives. We get to see that investment happening and coming together.

We have worked diligently to inspire big thinking and bold ideas on behalf of VCSU. Taking the challenge has allowed us to have the most attractive and significant scholarship program in the region...making VCSU not only the best institution to attend, but the most affordable.

Be Well and GO VIKINGS!

You, Your IRA and the Forward Together Capital Campaign

Larry Robinson '71

Capital Campaign Director

The Individual Retirement Account (IRA) is a very popular savings program for millions of Americans.

It is a structured retirement tool that provides additional financial security at the time of retirement.

The goal of building a retirement portfolio is to provide income when you stop working. You should start taking withdrawals when you need income, provided you have a strategy in place to keep your assets from depleting. Most financial advisors will suggest as a "best practice" not to take more than 5% in a given year, but your personal income may vary. Some investors may be positioned not to need income from their portfolio until well into their retirement.

It is important to understand that IRA Accounts are subject to RMD's (Required Minimum Distributions). RMD's are legally mandated withdrawals that begin to affect an IRA once the investor turns 72 years of age or 70 ½ if they reached 70 ½ in 2019.

The exciting benefit of an IRA is that Congress has enacted legislation to provide for a permanent IRA Rollover. The provisions of this legislation allow you to roll over up to $100,000 annually to a charity of your choice, tax free. Yes, tax free. To qualify, the funds must be transferred directly to our foundation.

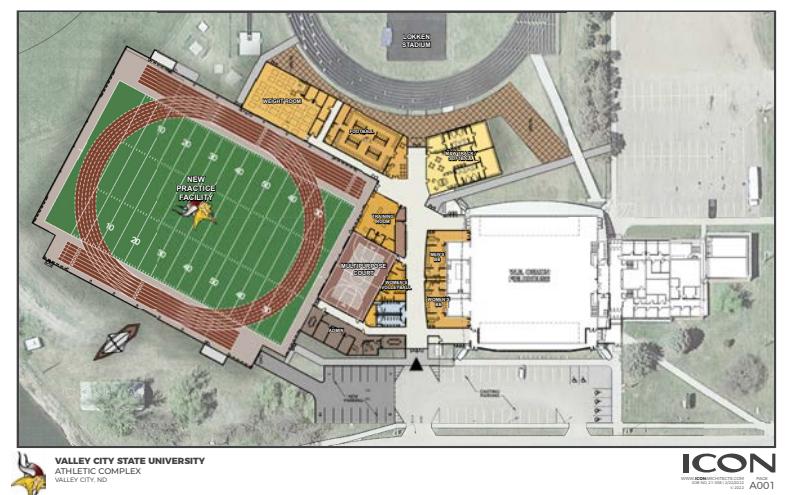

For example, you could elect to make a pledge to VCSU's Capital Campaign and use your RMD from your IRA, to make the annual payments on the pledge. Should you pass away prior to all the pledges payments having been made, the balance of the pledge can be made from your estate. This is an actual example of a gift made to our Capital Campaign by a friend/donor to the university. In this case, the donor elected to make a pledge to the Capital Campaign of $1,000,000 from an IRA. The donor set the pledge payments to be made from his RMD in his IRA at $100,000 annually. The payments will continue over a 5 year time period. Should the donor pass away in the interim, the balance of the pledges due will be transferred to the Capital Campaign account.

Needless to say, the above scenario is exciting. This donor is being very creative and generous. He is in fact, creating the future today! This gift will touch the lives of future generations of students here at VCSU. It will be a gift that keeps on giving. His legacy is clearly in place!

As the Director of VCSU's Capital Campaign, Forward Together, I encourage you give serious consideration to supporting our campaign. Every gift, big or small, is critical to the success of this campaign. I have had the honor of serving on the staff of our university since 1975, and I am also a 1971 graduate of VCSU. I assure you that this campaign is based on actual needs and not wants. It is my firm belief "that this is our time." Join me as we move Forward Together!

Please direct questions regarding VCSU's Capital Campaign to the VCSU Foundation Office at 701-845-7203.

The $25 million Forward Together capital campaign represents an opportunity for VCSU and Valley City to set itself apart. We believe in boldly pursuing all endeavors that include growth and providing the best educational experience for students. Athletics is an important component of student opportunity at VCSU.

How the New Center for the Arts is Transforming Student Experiences at Valley City State University

What started as an idea at Valley City State University has become a reality.

The Center for the Arts building is open for classes, and students participating in art or music have a new place to call home.

"The students are very comfortable in the classrooms, happy and excited," President Alan LaFave said. "We wanted to provide a space that would be welcoming and help our faculty deliver the highest possible educational experiences. We wanted to create a venue that could be used by the community. We needed a hub for cutting-edge technology and innovation for our students."

The new space achieves those goals, LaFave said.

The building not only enhances the student experience now but will generate a place for music and arts programs to thrive and grow.

"I see it becoming a beehive of activity," he said. "This can be a place for developing skills that help students improve their craft, whether it's visual arts or performing arts. It will inspire creative activity."

Freshman music education major Jayden Moser agreed.

"There are so many new opportunities as a musician here," the Jamestown, N.D., student said.

"I can do a lot more in this building, and it is just amazing."

Moser said she appreciates the ability to adjust the acoustic tuning in many of the rooms and having identified spaces to practice and improve.

"I love spending my time here," she said smiling. "I am here all of the time because the environment is very welcoming. It is just a really great place to be."

Providing a welcoming and inspiring space was one of the main goals for the center.

"The Center for the Arts is not only a beautiful, spectacular facility, it's also very practical and usable," LaFave said. "The classrooms are flexible spaces that can be used for many different types of educational experiences."

Incorporating flexible classrooms with natural light was a priority for Angela Mircsov, art department chair.

"We focused on having natural light for creating artworks" she said. "We wanted to design safe, clean studios to teach students in the most professional way possible."

VCSU has students working with 2D, 3D, 4D and digital works. Creating art in the new space has been inspiring, Mircsov said.

"Ceramics and other classes have natural light and it creates an openness for the students to create," she said. "The printmaking studio has presses, and a beautiful view of campus."

There is also dedicated space for three upcoming seniors to focus on their creative works and develop materials for their senior art show.

"Having the proper lighting and room to create helps our students learn differently," Mircsov said. "I am hoping students will take inspiration from this space and other departments and community members see all the possibilities of collaborating with our disciplines."

Junior art education major Nicole Hurt said creating in the new building has been a great experience.

"There is more room to breathe," the Hillsboro, N.D., student said. "It's nice to have a space to do my work and overall it's been great."

Hurt said she spends the majority of her time in the digital design and computer lab. She also has access to the senior studio as she begins preparing materials for her art show.

This building just feels different," Hurt said. "It's more open and welcoming. It is nice to have a place to call our own."

Hurt's classmate Mitchell Silkman of Waite Park, Minn., agreed that the space feels different.

"This is a place for us, as a university, to act on the numerous opportunities we have at our fingertips," the senior said. "This is a place where stagnate ideas can become a reality."

Silkman also utilizes the senior art studio space. He is preparing for a senior art show this spring.

"The space feels much different. We have more space physically and mentally for creative minds to flourish," Silkman said.

Watching students flourish in the warmth of the new building has been inspiring for Jerrold Heide, music department chair.

The practice rooms are comfortable and students are spending more time in the building.

"We have more students scheduling practice room time, and we are seeing an increase of collaboration between students as well," he said.

Also, students can perform in places with full control over the acoustical elements of the room.

"We can control the sound in rehearsal spaces so it matches the performance spaces perfectly," Heide said. "It removes the need for last-minute adjustment and allows us to do more and engage students to their full potential."

In mid-February, Heide conducted the first ensemble concert in the Performance Hall.

"It's the perfect size," he said. "It's large enough to meet the capacity needs, but small enough to maintain the intimate feel with a crowd in the hall. You can feel the intensity from the applause and that makes a performance more interactive," Heide said.

Music faculty have been utilizing the acoustically-designed practice rooms, larger areas for group practice, choral hall and band room.

Practicing in a room that is very similar to the performance venue allows instructors and performers the chance to focus on the music and not the logistics.

"With the Center for the Arts, the Performance Hall is unparalleled in our region. The quality of the facility and the capacity for growth allow us to expand the number of students participating in music, but also the quality of music we create."

"The building creates a sense of positivity and confidence that is noticeable," Heide said. "This building allows the focus to shift to what is possible."

Music student and elementary education major Tanner Douville of Twin Valley, Minn., said he feels more confident in his musical abilities because of the Center for the Arts.

"With the new instruments and practice rooms it is easier to feel more confident in myself and the music department," the sophomore said. Douville said he spends most of his time in the practice rooms or social areas of the building and really enjoys spaces to collaborate.

"I feel like I have more of a connection with my fellow classmates," he said. "We all have more space to breathe."

The move into the new building began in earnest in January of this year.

Through fall semester last year, music students were primarily found at Foss Hall and art students worked in various lab and art spaces in McCarthy Hall.

In 2009 and 2011, floods prompted the building of new flood protection systems in Valley City, and Foss Hall was on the wrong side of the flood wall.

Work to build a new Center for the Arts was underway for years but finally became a reality on May 2, 2019.

Gov. Doug Burgum signed Senate Bill No. 2297, providing $32 million for the new space. In less than two months, construction had started and the building process was underway.

"There was a lot of external support that came from a practical point of view," LaFave said.

Any flood impact, even a small one, could greatly damage expensive music equipment like grand pianos, electronics and instruments.

It was essential to replace the space Foss Hall provided.

"The process to make this a reality was very collaborative," LaFave said. "It took a lot of effort from a lot of people, and I could not be more proud of being a part of that process."

Now, with the building in use and spaces being filled with arts and music, LaFave said he is enthusiastic about the future.

"I'm most excited about what this means for our future," LaFave said. "The growth, collaboration and opportunities the CFA will provide are tremendous."

Phone-a-Thon & Giving Hearts Day

The VCSU Alumni Association's annual Phone-A-Thon, one of our major activities each academic year, allows our alumni to show their Viking Pride in supporting our university. Donations allow us to stay in touch with alumni in several important ways, including publication of The Bulletin, hosting socials and reunions, sponsoring alumni award programs and supporting programs on the campus of Valley City State University. The Phone-A-Thon also provides scholarship support to our current students attending VCSU.

By supporting the annual Phone-A-Thon, you can help VCSU achieve the strategic initiatives underway that move VCSU forward.

Thank you to everyone who has supported the 2021 Alumni Phone-A-Thon. The following list includes cash donations and payment on pledges received as of Feb. 28, 2022.

If you haven't made your donation, there is still time! Send your contribution today or find us on the web at www.vcsualumni.org and click on the "Make a Gift Online" button. We accept Visa, Discover and MasterCard, or if you prefer, call the VCSU Foundation Office at 701-845-7203. Thank you for your continued support.

Valley City State University Successfully Reaccredited by the Higher Learning Commission

VCSU "Healthy, Forward-Looking Culture" Noted by the Review Team

Valley City State University (VCSU) has officially been reaccredited by the Higher Learning Commission (HLC).

The accreditation follows a comprehensive evaluation by the HLC that included a review of VCSU policies, procedures and documents. The process also included an in-person, on-campus visit with HLC officials late last year. The review found strong educational, governance and cultural components present at VCSU. The next HLC accreditation site visit will be during the 2031-32 school year.

"The HLC accreditation process provides a comprehensive review of the entire campus and assures quality by verifying that we meet standards and are engaged in continuous improvement," VCSU President Alan LaFave said. "This validates the trust HLC has in our faculty and staff to continue providing the best educational experiences possible. This is a proud moment for our entire institution."

Every core component listed by the HLC was met during the reaccreditation process.

"Our faculty and staff did a great job in preparing materials for this review. Their work highlights the many advances we have made at VCSU academically and on campus," Margaret Dahlberg, Vice President of Academic Affairs, said. "This accreditation shows that we continue to offer quality educational opportunities in line with our mission and purpose."

Two areas of note are the efforts made to better utilize assessment when making critical decisions and the shared governance structures present on campus.

"VCSU has met all of the Criteria for Accreditation and has a healthy, forward-looking culture that uses evidence of institutional and program effectiveness to inform decisions and to make improvements," the HLC report states.

VCSU Announces First Master of Science Degree in Business Information Systems

Valley City State University (VCSU) officially launched the institution's first Master of Science graduate degree in Business Information Systems.

"This degree came about through collaboration, hard work and cooperation of folks from our campus and the community of Valley City," President Alan LaFave said. "We are very excited about this opportunity. This is another step in expanding and growing our graduate offerings."

The Master of Science graduate degree is open to anyone with an undergraduate degree, regardless of area of study.

"I'm really excited about this degree program. This new program gives us an opportunity to expand our offerings more and serve the businesses around the region," James Boe, Dean of Graduate Studies, said.

"This also allows us to offer a new program for our undergraduate students in computer and information systems," Boe said. "Once they graduate they will have the opportunity to get their advanced degree and enter the workforce with a masters degree."

Interested individuals are not required to come to the program with computer programming experience. Anyone who is interested has access to training opportunities to fully prepare for the program of study.

"We are excited to start offering our fully online coursework for this program in the summer of 2022," Sue Pfeifer, chair of the Computer Systems and Software Engineering Department said.

"This master of science degree is a collaboration between business communication, software engineering and computer information systems. We will also be using software like SAP and Salesforce so people will have the opportunity to become even more employable by the time they graduate."

2022 Indoor Track & Field Recap

BROOKINGS, S.D. – Valley City State University (VCSU) athletes won three conference championships, set or tied five school records, and had 13 All-Conference performances during the NSAA Indoor Track & Field Championships contested Feb. 20 in Brookings, S.D.

Zachary Co (shot put), JT Reed (60 meters) and Brooke Malsom (long jump) all won individual conference titles for the Vikings, and both Valley City State teams finished in fourth place out of seven team at the North Star Athletic Association conference championships.

VCSU head coach Laquone Robinson was proud of VCSU's accomplishments on the day, with numerous athletes competing at their highest level yet this season.

"Hands down, this was the best meet I've been a part of since joining Valley City State," said Robinson. "Going into this meet, we were clear that each athlete had a job to do; to focus on themselves and perform their personal best. When each individual focused on themselves in their moment, it allowed our team to rise as a whole. They competed at their highest level today, and it was so much fun to be a part of."

Sprinter and jumper Brooke Malsom had a day to remember as she was named both the NSAA's Most Valuable Athlete and the Field Athlete of the Year. Malsom won a conference title in the long jump, placed second in the triple jump and set new school records in both the 60 and 200 meter races. In her four events, Malsom finished with four Top 4 finishes – including three All-Conference performances. She became the first women in VCSU history to go below 8 seconds in the 60 meter dash, and she shattered the school record in the 200 meters with a time of 25.83 seconds – nearly a second faster than the old record of 26.70 seconds set by Kerri Turnbough in 2002.

On the mens' side, JT Reed won a conference title in the 60 meter dash and tied his school record with a time of 6.96 seconds. Zachary Co won his third straight conference title in the shot put and added another All-Conference performance with a third place in the weight throw. Co has now won five individual conference titles and has won the last three NSAA indoor shot put titles. He competed in both shotput and weight throw at the NAIA Indoor National Championships and placed 8th in shot put to earn All-American honors.

Other All-Conference (Top 3) performances came from Taylor Sargent (60 hurdles and pentathlon), Hannah Gordon (shot put and weight throw), Sadie Hansen (shot put), Clay Kummer (60 hurdles) and Noah Rolfe (mile run).

During the 2022 indoor season, the Vikings set school records in nine different events.

Spring Sports Quick Hits

The spring sports season is already underway at Valley City State, which both the baseball and softball teams are more than a dozen games into their respective seasons. And for the first time since 2014, the Valley City State track & field teams will host a home meet. The Vikings are set to host a meet in April and then will host the NSAA Conference Championships in May.

Softball Starts 7-5

The Viking softball team opened the 2022 season in February with games at the Minot Dome and Presentation College Dome. VCSU has started the season with a 7-5 record and won its last four games. The Viking softball team picked up two notable wins over rival University of Jamestown.

The Vikings were picked to finish second in the 2022 NSAA Softball Coaches' Preseason poll and received one first place vote in the poll. VCSU returns most of its starters from the 2021 season including six All-Conference selections and two Gold Glove recipients.

VCSU's Joelle Lamontagne and Jessica Husband were named NSAA Players of the Week on Feb. 21, after a 4-0 weekend at the PC Dome.

VCSU travels to Tucson, Ariz. for 11 games March 9-16 before kicking off the conference season on March 26. VCSU hosts its conference opener against 2021 NSAA Tournament Champion Dickinson

State. The Vikings will play a 51-game schedule in 2022, including 28 conference contests. The NSAA conference tournament will be played in Watertown, S.D., on May 5-8.

Track and Field Hosting NSAA Championships

Coming off a successful indoor season, the VCSU track and field teams will have a busy spring with nine outdoor meets currently on the schedule.

The outdoor season culminates with the NSAA Outdoor Conference Championships, which will be hosted by Valley City State University at the recently reconstructed John & Diane Hill Track & Field Complex in Valley City.

VCSU is also scheduled to host a meet in April – the first home meet for VCSU since the 2014 season.

Golf Season Begins March 28

The Valley City State golf teams will take to the course March 28 for their first meet of the spring season. The Vikings are scheduled to play four meets this spring, culminating with the NSAA Championships, April 25-26 in Albert Lea, Minn.

Baseball goes 6-2 in Fall Games

The Viking Baseball team has been ramping up for a busy month of March. The Vikings are scheduled to play 18 games on the road during the month of March, including four games at U.S. Bank Stadium in Minneapolis, and seven games in Tucson, Ariz.

Valley City State enters the spring schedule with a 6-2 overall record after playing eight games during the fall season. It was VCSU's most successful fall since the team started playing fall baseball back in 2013.

Valley City State was picked to finish third in the NSAA Baseball Preseason Coaches' Poll behind Bellevue University and Mayville State. The Vikings return the bulk of their lineup from last year's team that went 23-26 overall and finished third in the NSAA with a 14-9 conference record. That lineup hit a school-record 80 home runs, including a single-season record of 18 by graduating senior Jorun Hamre.

Infielder David Demeter is back after hitting 14 home runs and 48 RBIs last season, while outfielder/catcher Dustin Mertz is coming off a freshman season that saw him hit .405 with 10 home runs and 22 extra-base hits. Speedster JT Reed swiped 22 bases last season while batting .303 with seven home runs and 35 RBIs. They'll help anchor what should once again be a strong batting order.

"The offensive lineup should be very good again," said head coach Casey Olney. "Losing Jorun is a significant loss, but pretty much everybody else that was a big factor in our lineup is back. So it's a very experienced lineup and we're adding a few new pieces to it as well that should make it a little more dynamic."

On the mound, veteran arms Reed Butz, William Hlady and Chase Feller will be expected to anchor VCSU's pitching rotation. The trio totaled five wins and pitched 44 of VCSU's 61 innings during the fall season.

The NSAA Baseball Tournament will be played May 6-9 in Forest City, Iowa.

Susan Rock - Department of Mathematics

Susan Rock, 84 of Washington Island, Wisconsin died on November 14, 2021. Susan is survived by her son Michael McCauley and his son Dean McCauley, and by her daughter Kathryn Love and her husband Jack. She is also survived by her brother John Rock, his wife Betty, and their extended family. She was preceded in death by her parents, Frances (Haluzza) Rock and Theodore Rock.

Susan was born and raised in Cedar Rapids Iowa, graduating from Wilson High School in 1955. She attended Iowa State Teachers College (now University of Northern Iowa), earning a Bachelor's Degree in 1959 and a Master's Degree a year later, both in Math Education.

After earning her degrees, her first teaching job was at Grinnell High School in Grinnell, Iowa. After teaching math in Grinnell for two years, she taught math for a year at Dike High School in Dike, Iowa. In 1963 she moved to Crystal Lake, Illinois to teach math at Cary-Grove High School. After a year, she took time off to start a family with then husband, Harry McCauley. After the birth of her two children, she returned to teaching in 1967, this time at Crystal Lake High School (now Crystal Lake Central). In 1978 she moved to Crystal Lake South High School where she was on the original faculty who opened the new school. Susan had been a Campfire Girl in her youth, and for a few years served as a leader for her daughter's Campfire Girls group. As her family grew up, they went on numerous road trips to all parts of the country. This included, among others, a trip across the American southwest and up the coast of California, as well as a trip to the East Coast for the Bicentennial year.

During these years, her family began spending summers on Washington Island. She became very interested in wildlife through programs at the Art and Nature Center. During the summers she worked briefly at the Art and Nature Center before becoming the Naturalist at Rock Island State Park, a position she held for many years.

In the late 1980's she began work on a doctoral degree in math education at The University of Wisconsin-Madison, and earned her Ph.D. in 1992. While working on her Ph.D. she supervised student teachers, something she would continue to do as a professor at The University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, and later at Valley City State University in North Dakota. Teaching was a life-long passion that continued into her retirement as a math tutor.

Susan retired to Washington Island where she became very involved in the community and made lasting friendships.
